

Barbara KANNAWIN

PROJECT DIRECTOR • FACILITATOR

For more than a decade, Barbara Kannawin has dedicated herself to bringing the effective thinking skills education of The Pacific Institute to those organizations with a stake in Canada's future – educators and students, First Nations' Chiefs and Councils, small and mid-sized businesses and government agencies.

While working in the field of education, Barbara is helping proprietary schools across Canada to turn out thousands of highly sought-after graduates to waiting businesses. In the mid-90's, she was instrumental in successfully implementing the Institute's education to over 450 middle to upper level managers who had been laid off due to downsizing – a project funded by the Canadian Government.

Barbara's ability to engender long-standing trust has allowed her to work with several First Nations groups, assisting them in taking charge of their own futures. Her commitment to excellence is a powerful example to those who benefit from her coaching and facilitations.

This "connected" society of the 21st Century allows Barbara to work all across North America, but she makes her home in British Columbia.
